

Figure 14.1 Example of an external circuit that controls a set of lights. The device contains circuitry that converts incoming digital logic signals into the signals needed to operate a set of light bulbs.